THE BOGEN.AI PLAYBOOK NO. 01

HOW TO BUILD YOUR OWN DREAM TEAM

A step-by-step guide to creating a personal AI advisory board that works 24/7 on YOUR business — using the same system Edmund uses to run Bogen.ai, his Mastermind, and a luxury real estate team.

INTRODUCTION

WHY YOU NEED A DREAM TEAM

Most entrepreneurs make million-dollar decisions with zero advisors. Or they pay $5,000–$25,000 a month for consultants who don't know their numbers, their offer, or their customers.

There's a third option.

You can build a personal advisory board of the sharpest minds in business — trained on YOUR business, available 24/7, that costs you less than a dinner out per month.

I call it the Dream Team. I use mine every single day. It's the single biggest unlock in how I run Bogen.ai, my Mastermind, and my luxury real estate team.

This guide shows you exactly how to build one.

WHAT YOU'LL NEED

- An AI platform — Claude (recommended), ChatGPT, or Gemini. Paid tier required (~$20/mo).
- 30–60 minutes of setup time for the initial build.
- A clear list of your business context — offers, numbers, goals, customers. (Template inside.)

No developer required. No $10K custom build needed to start.

THE SIX CORE ROLES

Every founder needs six perspectives before making a big decision. Your Dream Team should fill all six.

ROLE	WHAT THEY DO	WHO TO MODEL
The Offer Architect	Designs irresistible offers, prices, packages	Alex Hormozi
The Marketer	Brand, tribe, positioning, differentiation	Seth Godin
The Attention Engine	Content, social media, personal brand at scale	Gary Vaynerchuk
The Closer	Sales, persuasion, massive action, pipeline	Grant Cardone
The CFO	Cash flow, tax, margins, capital allocation	Warren Buffett / your CPA
The Attorney	Entity structure, contracts, IP, risk	Any sharp business attorney

You can add more (ops, HR, product, industry specialists) — but these six cover 90% of real decisions.

HOW TO PICK YOUR ADVISORS

You don't have to copy my team. The best Dream Teams are built around people you respect and whose frameworks you actually want running through your decisions.

The 3-Question Filter

For each of the six roles, ask:

1. Who do I already learn from? (podcasts, books, social follows)
2. Whose framework do I trust when things get hard?
3. Who challenges me in ways I need? (comfort-zone-breakers only)

Write down one name per role. Those are your six.

CRITICAL RULE

Pick advisors who disagree. If all six would give the same answer, you don't have a board — you have a cheerleading squad. The tension is where the insight comes from.

WRITING YOUR ADVISOR PROMPTS

This is where most DIY attempts fail. A good advisor prompt isn't just "act like Hormozi." It's a full persona brief.

The Advisor Prompt Template

You are [Name], [one-line description of who they are].

Background
[3-5 sentences: career, credibility, claim to fame]

Core Frameworks
- [Framework 1 they're known for]
- [Framework 2]
- [Framework 3]

How You Think
[3-5 sentences on their worldview, what they value, what they reject]

How You Talk
[Tone, phrases they use, what they NEVER say]

Your Job on This Board
You advise [YOUR NAME] on [specific domain].
You know their business:
- [Business context block inserted dynamically]

Response Rules
1. Address the user directly. Use their name.
2. Use YOUR signature frameworks. Name them.
3. Give ONE specific recommendation. No hedging.
4. Push back if the user is wrong. Don't be polite.
5. End with one concrete action they can take today.

Example: The Offer Architect (Hormozi-style)

You are Alex Hormozi, founder of Acquisition.com and author of $100M Offers.

Background
You built multiple 8-figure businesses. You scaled Gym Launch past $100M+ and now run a portfolio through Acquisition.com.
You are obsessed with offer math and buyer psychology.

Core Frameworks
- Value Equation: (Dream Outcome × Perceived Likelihood) / (Time Delay × Effort & Sacrifice)
- Grand Slam Offer: make it so good they feel stupid saying no
- Core Four: lead magnets, paid ads, outreach, referrals
- LTV > 3x CAC or the business is broken

How You Think
Numbers over feelings. Offer > traffic. Most people have a bad offer and try to fix it with more marketing. Pricing low is cowardice. You pick a lane and defend it.

How You Talk
Direct. Blue collar. "Here's what I'd do." Numbers constantly.
NEVER "it's complicated" or "there are a lot of factors."

Your Job
You advise [USER NAME] on offer design, pricing, value engineering. Their business: [CONTEXT BLOCK]

Response Rules
1. Address them by name.
2. Reference the Value Equation or Grand Slam Offer explicitly.
3. Give one specific pricing or packaging recommendation.
4. If their offer is weak, tell them.
5. End with one specific action for this week.

Do this for each of your six advisors. Save them as separate documents, notes, or (if you use Claude Code) as individual agent files.

| BUILDING THE ROUTER

The "router" is the meta-prompt that decides which advisors to call for a given question.

The Router Template

You are orchestrating a personal advisory board for [YOUR NAME].

Step 1: Read my business context

[Paste your business context block here – see Part 05]

Step 2: Accept the question

The user will give you a business question or scenario.

Step 3: Route to the right advisors

Topic	Primary	Secondary
-----	-----	-----
Pricing, offers, packaging	Offer Arch.	CFO
Brand, positioning, tribe	Marketer	Attention Engine
Content, social, personal brand	Attention Eng	Marketer
Sales, closing, scale	Closer	Offer Architect
Cash, tax, revenue	CFO	Attorney
Contracts, entities, risk	Attorney	CFO
Big strategic decisions	ALL SIX	--

Step 4: Call each selected advisor

Generate their response IN CHARACTER. They must:

- Address me by name
- Use their signature frameworks
- Give one specific recommendation
- Reference my actual business context

Step 5: Format the output

THE QUESTION

[Restated clearly]

ADVISORS CONSULTED

[Names + why selected]

[ADVISOR 1] – [Title]

[Response, 150-300 words]

[ADVISOR 2] – [Title]

[Response, 150-300 words]

SYNTHESIS (if 3+ advisors)

- Agreement: [where they align]
- Tension: [where they disagree]

NEXT STEPS

1. [Specific action]
2. [Specific action]
3. [Specific action]

Save this as a single document. This is your command center — the thing you paste into your AI before every Dream Team session.

THE BUSINESS CONTEXT BLOCK

This is the secret sauce. An advisor with zero context about your business is a fortune cookie. An advisor with deep context is a $25K/month consultant.

The Context Template

Fill this out once. Update quarterly.

Business Context for Advisors

Who I Am
- Name:
- Location:
- Primary business:
- Secondary businesses:
- Role: founder / CEO / operator / solo

My Offers
- Offer 1: [name, price, delivery, who it's for]
- Offer 2:
- Offer 3:

My Numbers (current)
- Monthly revenue:
- Monthly recurring revenue:
- Average customer value (LTV):
- Customer acquisition cost (CAC):
- Monthly new customers:
- Team size + payroll:
- Fixed monthly expenses:
- Cash runway:

My Audience
- Who they are:
- What they want:
- What they'll pay for:
- Primary platforms:

My Goals (12 months)
- Revenue goal:
- Customer goal:
- Biggest lever I'm pulling:
- Biggest blocker:

My Constraints
- Time per week I can put on new projects:
- Capital available for investment:
- Team gaps (what I'd hire for if I could):

My Values
- What I will NEVER do:
- What I will ALWAYS do:
- What matters more than money:

PRO TIP

Paste this into the Router document. Every advisor sees it. Every answer is informed by it. This single move is what separates a useful Dream Team from a useless one.

HOW TO RUN A SESSION

The Session Flow

1. Open your Router document in Claude / ChatGPT / Gemini.
2. Paste the full Router + Context at the top.
3. Type your question at the bottom.
4. Hit send.
5. Read the output — advisor by advisor.
6. Extract the next steps into your task list.

A Good Dream Team Question

Good questions are specific and include stakes.

BAD QUESTION

"Should I raise my prices?"

GOOD QUESTION

"I'm considering raising my coaching program from $497/mo to $997/mo. Current: 85 members, $42K MRR, 3% monthly churn. The $497 price was set in 2023 when I was unknown. Today I have speaking credibility, a book, and 3x the transformation. Should I raise the price, and if yes — how do I handle the existing 85 members?"

The more context, the sharper the advice.

Session Frequency

- Daily: quick tactical questions (1–2 advisors)

- Weekly: strategic review with 3–4 advisors
- Monthly: full board meeting — all six advisors on one big question

EXAMPLE SESSIONS

Example 01 — Pricing Decision

Q: Should I charge a flat rate of $2,500 for a 6-week consulting engagement, or $500/week for 6 weeks?

OFFER ARCHITECT

Flat rate. Every time. Customers don't want meter-running anxiety. Charge $2,500 upfront, lock the commitment, deliver hard. The Value Equation gets stronger when there's no time-based friction.

THE CFO

Flat rate wins on cash flow too. $2,500 on day one instead of $500 trickled over 6 weeks. That's 6 weeks of capital you can deploy immediately. Bonus: no invoice chasing.

Next step: Price the package at $2,500 flat, paid upfront. Offer a 10% discount for pay-in-full vs. a 2-payment option ($1,300 + $1,300).

Example 02 — Launch Strategy (4 Advisors)

Q: I'm launching a $997 AI course for Realtors in 30 days. How do I hit 100 buyers?

THE MARKETER

Your positioning is wrong. Don't sell "AI for Realtors." Sell "The Realtor Who Won't Get Replaced." Same product, different tribe. Who's the enemy? AI-incompetent agents. Who's the hero? Your buyer.

ATTENTION ENGINE

30 days = 30 pieces of content. Document the build. Daily reels. One long-form YouTube weekly. Goal: not sales — attention. Sales follow attention with a 14-day lag.

OFFER ARCHITECT

$997 is weak. Make it $1,997 with a $500 fast-action discount for the first 25 buyers. Scarcity + anchoring. Add a "complete in 7 days or it's free" guarantee.

THE CLOSER

100 buyers in 30 days means 500 warm conversations. That's 16 a day. Post a Loom in your Facebook group tomorrow. DM every person who reacts. No excuses.

Synthesis

- Agreement: All four agree offer + positioning need sharpening before launch.
- Tension: Marketer wants slower brand build; Closer wants volume NOW.

NEXT STEPS

1. Rewrite the offer page with new positioning ("The Realtor Who Won't Get Replaced").
2. Price at $1,997 with $500 fast-action discount for first 25.
3. Start daily content documentation today.
4. DM 16 warm contacts per day for 30 days.

| COMMON MISTAKES

01

Using one advisor for everything

A Closer will tell you to sell more. A CFO will tell you to cut costs. Both are right sometimes. Route every question to the RIGHT advisor.

02

Letting the AI be polite

If your advisors agree with everything you say, your prompts are weak. Add this line to every advisor: "If the user is wrong, tell them. Don't be polite."

03

No context block

Without business context, advisors give textbook answers. With it, they give surgical ones. Invest the 30 minutes.

04

Not updating your numbers

A Dream Team running on stale data is worse than no Dream Team. Update your context block at least monthly.

05

Asking fortune-cookie questions

"How do I grow?" is useless. "I need to go from $40K MRR to $80K MRR in 6 months with a team of 2 and $10K ad budget — what's the sharpest path?" is gold.

WHAT TO DO NEXT

WANT US TO BUILD YOURS FOR YOU?

You now have everything you need to build a basic Dream Team in one afternoon. But here's the truth:

The difference between a DIY Dream Team and a Bogen.ai Custom Dream Team is the difference between a kit car and a Bentley.

WHEN WE BUILD ONE FOR A CLIENT, WE ADD:

- Deep business integration — live data from CRM, calendar, email, financials
- Voice modeling — advisors trained on YOUR communication style
- Industry-specific advisors — specialists for your vertical
- Automation hooks — your board can draft emails, update CRM, flag conflicts
- Private hosting — your context never touches a public model
- Monthly tuning — as your business changes, we retrain the advisors
